Good news! Al's pet sitting venture is working. We've been checking in with Al (also known as Taryn) for over two years now. She has not been able to find and hold a job, but last summer she participated in HomePlate's Sit-n-Stay program, where she took care of pets while their owners attended the Beaverton Farmer's Market. Using that experience, Al started her own pet sitting business. She has long term clients and takes care of a variety of dogs, cats, and even a pet rat. She proudly showed us the new business card that she designed.
