Most HomePlate drop in dinner nights include optional activities, crafts, or art for the youth. Some head to the supervised gym, where they can get active while learning social skills (talking "smack" is not allowed!). Others let their artistic skills bloom with the help of Marilyn, a steadfast volunteer who brings craft activities. At our last dinner Al, Amari, and Jevon (three of our longtime young friends) were excited to see how their pottery had turned out after it was fired in the kiln.
